The Cannon is booming now. But will the ammunition hold out two years?

It costs twenty cents to get a good shave in a New York barber shop now, but it comes higher to get one in Wall Street.

We do wish, while they are at it, they would do something to that word "pedagogy." It's awful for a professor to have to carry it around.

So, fugitive bank president Stensland was betrayed by one of his Chicago women who thought he had slighted her. Verily, "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned."

Another of the President's faddish fancies was the hiding of the great naval review in the obscurity of Oyster Bay. It was supremely selfish, to say the least.

After all, there's a lot of human nature of the Republican brand in Roosevelt's make-up; which means that, with him, party often ranks higher than patriotism.

"After a man has apologized what does it amount to?" asks the Chicago News. Why, it often saves him from a cracked skull or a flattened proboscis.

Tom Davis, of Moore county, was sentenced to the penitentiary for five years for stealing a bushel of wheat. A bank officer who steals a million stands a fair chance of going scot free.

The Washington Post says: "Claude R. Porter the Democratic candidate for Governor of Iowa, it is said, neither drinks, smokes, chews nor swears. You hardly need be told that he has not been in politics very long." And, notwithstanding all his virtues, the temperance voters will never take Porter in theirs.

It really seems that in its effort to raise the price of cotton to fifteen cents the Southern Cotton Association has made a signal failure. The planters have raised the cotton all right, but raising the price to fifteen cents is quite a different propositon.

[illegible]nly Meeting of Board of Aldermen Last Night Not So Lengthy As Expected

SOME MATTERS DEFERRED

Water Commission Report and Railway Terminal Matter Postponed Until Special Meeting Monday Night—Other Business.

The two most important matters for consideration at last night's postponed regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen—a report from the Water Commission and the opposition to the building of the railway terminals—were deferred until a special meeting to be held next Monday night, therefore the session was not as long as was expected, adjournment having been reached before 11 o'clock. A large number of spectators were present at the meeting, however, and while the two big features of the Aldermanic Midway were not pulled off, there was plenty doing to interest all and those outside the "inner circle" with no special interests at stake got their money's worth.

The important matters transacted by the Board consisted of granting the Fraternal Order of Eagles permission to hold a carnival, the receipt of an application from the Consolidated Company to be allowed to erect an additional large gas reservoir at Surry and Castle streets, the hearing of a number of petitions of interest from the citizens in regard to several matters and the authorization of an additional loan of $10,000 to meet current expenses until tax gathering time.

The Board was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock, all members being present and Mayor Pro Tem. O'Brien in the chair in the absence of the Mayor. Alderman Moore introduced Mr. DeLancey Evans, who asked permission to be allowed to continue work on a fence around his residence at Third and Chesnut streets, the construction having been interrupted by the city because it was held to be 18 inches on the sidewalk, though conceded to be the line of other property in the vicinity, including the Southern Building at Front and Chesnut streets, and the U. S. Postoffice building. There was a long discussion of the matter which should have been settled by any committee in ten minutes. It was finally agreed by a vote of 8 to 1 to allow Mr. Evans to build the fence on the old line.

Mr. Atkinson, of the A. C. L. general offices, appeared before the Board with regard to poll tax which he had been required to pay here while claiming his citizenship in the State of Georgia. Mr. Atkinson admitted that he had lived here most of the time for four years. Mr. Atkinson asked why he had been indicted for poll tax and did not indict Mr. Hugh MacRae, who claimed to be a citizen of Washington, D. C. Mr. Fowler replied that the matter as to Mr. MacRae had been adjudicated in the courts and he had no idea of any discrimination. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee and the City Attorney. Thus another 20 minutes of the Board's time was taken up with a matter which was clearly for the courts.

Chairman Yopp, of the Finance Committee, recommended a further loan of $10,000 to tide the city over until tax gathering time. The loan was authorized.

The contention over the railway terminal matter between Mr. Geo. H. Hutaff and the Atlantic Coast Line was brought up and Mr. Herbert McClammy, counsel for Mr. Hutaff, asked for a special meeting to consider the matter fully. Mr. T. W. Davis, counsel for the A. C. L., would like to have the matter settled at once but the Board decided to defer the matter until a special meeting next Monday night. Messrs. Meares & Ruark and Bellamy & Bellamy are also counsel for Mr. Hutaff.

William J. Bellamy, Esq., presented a petition from the Fraternal Order of Eagles asking to be allowed to hold a street fair and carnival in the vicinity of Fourth and Brunswick streets during the month of October or November. He also referred to a petition from citizens in the neighborhood, asking that the permission be given and that they have no objection to the fair being held in their midst. Alderman W. H. Yopp, with all due respect to the Eagles, stated his general opposition to all carnivals whether they be under the auspices of the Masons, Pythians or any other order. He moved that the petition be not granted. Alderman W. E. Yopp moved that it be granted. Alderman W. W. King objected generally to carnivals and to the "hoochey-koochey" especially. However, he would not be a kicker and was willing to let the application pass for charity's sake. The permission was finally granted, the location to be passed upon by the Aldermen from the First Ward and the Eagles to deposit $100 as a guarantee for possible damage to the pavement.

Attorney T. W. Davis brought up the matter of the tax of $100 per year on soliciting agents. He said that the tax had been held illegal because of its conflict with the Inter-State Commerce Act. Representatives of local roads might be required to pay the tax, but those representing the foreign corporations, he thought were not liable. The matter was referred to the City Attorney, who stated that he would look up the matter.

The Morris Distilling Company asked license to sell liquors in original packages at No. 6 South Front street, the application being presented by Attorney William J. Bellamy. After Mr. Bellamy was through, Brooke G. Empie, Esq., spoke in opposition, stating that the applicant must be a bona-fide resident. Mr. Bellamy stated that Mr. A. W. Branch and Mr. Bretersfelder composed the distilling company. Mr. Bellamy charged that the oppositon was backed by Mr A. Rothschild, a rival dealer. Mr. King asked Mr. Empie whom he was representing. Mr. Empie replied that he was representing the law of North Carolina. Mr. Rothschild asked permission to be heard and denied that he personally was backing the opposition but that several of the dealers were behind the movement. He finally admitted jocularly that competition was at the bottom of the affair. Mr. Bellamy clamored for recognition to be heard, but it was decided to refer the matter to the standing committee on applications for report at Monday night's special meeting of the Board.

City Building Inspector H. E. Bonitz appeared before the Board and presented an application from the Consolidated Company to erect an additional gas reservoir at northeast corner of Castle and Surry streets, same to cost $24,000, to be built of steel and to hold 150,000 cubic feet. The matter was referred to the Fire Commis-

MUNICIPAL COURT

Number of Cases of Interest Before Mayor Pro Tem. O'Brien Yesterday —Violation of Ordinance Against Obstructing Sidewalks.

The municipal court yesterday was lengthy, a dozen cases of more than passing interest having been docketed over night. The most important perhaps was a general brawl out at Third and Queen streets Tuesday night, growing out of which Samuel Yopp was charged with resisting Special Officer W. H. Smith and S. D. Taylor, white, was charged with disorderly conduct. Yopp was bound to the Superior Court under bond of $35 and Taylor was fined $5 and costs. Officer Smith said the conduct of the men was outrageous and that he was assaulted by Yopp while others in the crowd acted very ugly toward him.

John Watson, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $10 and costs in default of which he was sentenced to the roads for 30 days. He was given yesterday to arrange the payment of fine and costs.

Mr. W. A. Whitehead, the prosecutor, withdrew the warrant against the negro, George Johnson, charged with the larceny of a basket of potatoes and he was discharged, Mr. Whitehead paying the costs.

Contractor Thad. F. Tyler, charged with obstructing the streets at Second and Princess, where the Garrell buildings are in process of building, was discharged upon condition that the obstruction be removed at once.

James A. Fields, colored, charged with an aggravated case of disorderly conduct at Fourth and Harnett and arrested by Officer I. F. Huggins, was fined $20 and costs in default of which he will go to the roads for 30 days.

Jim Brock, white, charged with drunkenness, was let off upon condition that he leave the city at once. Tom Wells a negro serving a thirty day sentence around the City Hall, was permitted to go home Tuesday night to change his raiment. While he was away he kicked up a row with Kate Fisher, of Dross Neck fame, and was given an additional 30 days.

William Howe and Sue McLean, charged with maintaining unsanitary premises, were discharged upon condition that they would abate the nuisance at once.

VALUATIONS IN CITY

Taxables Show Substantial Increase In Items For Ensuing Fiscal Year

BOOKS NOW COMPLETED

Turned Over Last Night to City Clerk and Treasurer For Collection—Only Falling Off is In Solvent Credits.

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen last night Chairman W. H. Yopp, of the Finance Commitee, reported that the computation of the city tax books for the ensuing fiscal year had been completed by Capt. T. D. Meares, clerk of the Board of Audit and Finance, and Assistant City Clerk and Treasurer C. H. White, and that they would be turned over to the Treasury Department at once for collection.

The compilation of the figures show a net gain in valuation over last year of $248,815 while the net gain in taxes to be collected will be $3,821.54. Gains are made in all valuations except solvent credits in which there is a falling off of $282,669, the amount given in for 1905 having been $673,246 against only $390,577 this year. The increase in real esate estate is $134,112; personal property, $122,387; money on hand, $21,674; stock in corporations, $183,657 and stock in trade, $69,654. The total gains were $531,484, but the decrease in solvent credits reduces the net increase to $241,815.

The amount of money collectible on real and personal property this year is $146,893.62 against $143,158.08 last year, while the amount collectible on polls this year is $6,296 against $6,210 last year. All things considered the gains are very satisfactory. Next year there will be an entirely new assessment and the amounts are expected to increase very largely on real state holdings from present valuations. The books are now in the hands of the City Clerk and Treasurer and the collections will be pushed at once as the city is now borrowing money until the taxes can be collected.

CONVICTED IN NORFOLK.

Stranger Arrested for Orton House Tried on Virginia Charge First.

Chief of Police Williams yesterday received a telegram from the chief of police in Norfolk stating that the man West wanted here upon a warrant charging him with larceny by trick from The Orton hotel, had been tried and convicted there on a charge of beating the Monticello Hotel and that an officer need not come for him just yet. Requisition has been made for him on the Governor of Virginia but the papers will probably not be carried for the prisoner until he has completed his sentence in Virginia.

Arrested for Larceny.

Charlie Ellers, a young white man employed as a painter on the roof of the Chamber of Commerce building, on Princess street, was arrested yesterday on a charge of the larceny of clothing from a sample room of S. & B. Solomon, on the second floor of the building where he was employed. Entrance was either gained through a sky-light discovered by him while he was painting or through one of the doors from the interior. He was committed to jail yesterday afternoon and will be given preliminary trial before Justice Furlong this afternon at 4 o'clock.

Word of the Maniac.

A telephone message yesterday morning from Funston, Brunswick county, stated that Fred Hill, the violently insane negro who had given so much alarm in Federal Point township, was in that neighborhood and that if a warrant were sent to the officer there, he would arrest the man for the New Hanover authorities. The matter was referred to Justice Bornemann, who forwarded a warrant to the Brunswick officer on the steamer Whitlock at once. It is expected that Hill will be taken into custody and brought to Wilmington to-day.

Remains Sent to Wilson.

The remains of the late Mr. S. A. Brewer, who passed away at his residence in this city early yesterday morning, were taken last night to Wilson, N. C., accompanied by members of the family. The funeral will be conducted there this morning. The pall-bearers from the residence to the station yesterday evening were Messrs. Virginius Hall, R. J. Darden, E. H. Bowdoin and Jno. N. Mohr.

V. C. TERRY NAMED

Appointed to Position in Office of Collector of Internal Revenue— Democratic Handbook Soon Out—Interesting Point.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 5.—E. C. Duncan, collector of internal revenue for the Eastern district, announces the appointment of V C. Terry as office deputy to suceed Lester F Butler, a brother of Marion Butler, who is assistant postmaster at Raleigh. Terry entered to-day. He is a linotype operator and has taken an active part in local Republican politics several years.

The Democratic handbook for the impending campaign will be issued within the next few days. It consists of 185 pages, being the largest ever issued in the State, being exceptionally comprehensive as to both State and National politics.

When the third district cases are called in the Supreme Court next week for argument on appeal one of the most interest probably will be the State vs. William Sultan from Newbern in which the novel question of the eligibility of a member of an anti-Saloon League to sit as juror in the trial of a person charged with retailing liquor without license will be an issue. The plaintiff was convicted before Judge Long and sentenced to five months imprisonment and $500 fine. The trial judge refused to bar anti-Saloon League members from the jury and the defendant exhausted his peremptory challenges on members of the league and still others were left on the jury before he must stand trial. The contention is that the league members are unduly prejudiced against a defendant charged with violation of the liquor law.

NEW DAYAGE BUSINESS.

Messrs. Ramsey and VonGlahn Form Co-Partnership on the Wharf.

Elsewhere in to-day's paper will be found a notice that Messrs. T. C. Ramsey and Chas. VonGlahn have formed a copartnership to engage in the general drayage and transfer business under the firm name of Ramsey & VonGlahn with offices at foot of Chesnut street. They are both young men of good business ability and will merit the patronage of the public by prompt attention to all matters entrusted to their care. Their 'phone is 1371 and all orders placed with them either by 'phone or in person will meet with immeidate response. They have an excellent equipment and will be pleased to serve the public.

Train Split Switch

Passenger train No. 49, from the north, while coming into the station yesterday evening at 6 o'clock, split a switch near the Independent Ice Company's plant, the locomotive taking the main track and the tender and coaches taking the siding. Fortunately the train was moving at a low rate of speed and only the tender and express car were derailed. No one was hurt. The passengers walked the short distance to the station and a wrecking crew was sent out to clear the line. The outgoing train north last night was delayed about 30 minutes because of the wreck.

The Senatorial Affair.

Chairman Geo. H. Bellamy, of the Brunswick County Democratic Executive Committee, was here yesterday. He was asked as to the date he and Chairman Burriss would probably decide on for the Senatorial Convention between the two counties. Mr. Bellamy stated that he had hoped to see Mr. Burriss, but would come over again on Friday to talk the matter over with him.

Residence Property Purchased.

By deeds filed for record yesterday Chas. S. Southerland transferred to L. W. Moore, for $3,000, property on east side of Fifth, between Nun and Church streets, 33x104 feet in size, and Mrs. Matilda E. VanLear, of Portsmouth, Va., transferred to Nathan Humphrey, for $5,500, the valuable property at northeast corner of Fourth and Walnut street, 60x66 feet in size.

Prosecutor Taxed With Costs.

In Justice Furlong's court yesterday Annie Telfair was indicted by Susie Gill for an assault and battery. Wm. J. Bellamy, Esq., appeared for the defence and made out a case of frivolous prosecution whereupon the Gill woman was taxed with the costs.

ITS FOURTH ANNUAL

Stockholders of Atlantic Trust and Banking Company In Session Yesterday.

MOST EXCELLENT SHOWING

Over Five Million in Paper Discounted —More Than $50,000 Interest to Depositors—Good Dividend to Stockholders.

The fourth annual meeting of the Atlantic Trust and Banking Company was held yesterday afternoon in the Southern Building, Front and Chesnut streets. Mr. H. E. Bonitz was called to the chair and Mr. F. L. Huggins was requested to act as secretary.

The most interesting and gratifying feature of the meeting was the annual report of the president, Mr. M. J. Heyer. It showed that for the four years ended September 1st., the bank during its operation had discounted paper to the amount of $5,265,651.24; that the bank had paid in interest to depositors, $53,576.67; in dividends to stockholders, $10,500 and had accumulated a surplus of $25,000. The president extended his thanks to the retiring directors for the great assistance they had been in administering the affairs of the institution and also to the stockholders for the support they had given the bank. Mr. Heyer was congratulated upon his excellent report and thanked for his attention and devotion to its interest.

Upon motion the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Messrs. M. O'Brien, L. B. Rogers, B. H. J. Ahrens, B. Solomon, John H. Kuck, Chas. J. Mitchell, B. O. Stone, C. W. Yates, J. G. L. Gieschen, I. M. Bear and Matt J. Heyer. The directors will meet later and elect officers for the ensuing year.

The meeting of stockholders was largely attended in person, there being represented 350 out of 500 shares in person and by proxy. Just before the close of the meeting Mr. William Calder made a few remarks which were received with enthusiasm by those in attendance upon the meeting. He said that men differed from women in more than one respect. When the gentler sex were well pleased in public assembly, they were usually jubilant and noisy. He observed that when men were well pleased they said nothing. He thought that some note should be made of the able management of the bank and he took that occasion to congratulate the directors and officers upon the wonderful success that had been attained. The thanks of the stockholders he thought were due the officers and directors for their excellent administration of affairs.

An Approaching Wedding.

Friends in this city yesterday received handsomely engraved invitations reading as fololws: "Mr. Thomas Stonewall McManus requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of his daughter, Helen Fay, to Mr. Joseph Inskip Sabiston, on Wednesday afternoon, September the nineteenth, at five o'clock, at the First Baptist church, Wilmington, North Carolina." Both the bride-elect and the prospective groom are well known in Wilmington and are very popular with many friends who will be interested in this announcement.

Going to the Convention.

Editor R. B. Branch, of the Red Springs Citizen, is in the city on his way to Lumberton where he will attend the Robeson County Convention today. Mr. Branch says that the Southern Presbyterian College at Red Springs, will open on the 12th., with the prspects brighter than for any year since its establishment. There are already more applications for rooms and board in the college than can be supplied.

Disorder on Carolina Beach.

The several cases of carrying concealed weapons growing out of the disturbances among negroes celebration Labor Day at Carolina Beach Monday, were aired in the magistrate courts of the city yesterday. Justice Furlong bound Dave Moore and Lonnie Ashford over to the Superior Court in two cases and each went to jail in default of $25 bond. Robert Myers was found not guilty and discharged. In Justice Bornemann's court John Long, an A. C. L. porter, was also found not guilty and discharged. Long was represented by William J. Bellamy, Esq.

WATTERSON'S POSITION.

As was expected, Henry Watterson criticizes adversely that feature of the Bryan speech favoring government ownership of railroads. In the Courier-Journal of Sept. 1st he says:

"His speech of Thursday night is a great speech. It contained matter enough to engage the thoughts of people and parties and statesmen for a decade to come. If half the remedies he proposed be attained we shall have sailed out of the trough of the sea of mammon and be riding full rigged the billowy mid ocean of Democracy. It is with positive lamenting that we read, mark and inwardly digest what he says of the purchase and public ownership of the railways, because we not only think it the height of unwisdom from the political point of view, but of error from the Democratic and Republican point of view.

"The incident of State ownership of State lines which Mr. Bryan throws as a sop to the old Democracy of State rights is the merest item. It takes away none of the centralizing features of the government ownership of the trunk lines. The Federal idea carried to its ultima thule could go no further in consolidating the powers of government. Under the system he advocates the government of public opinion, upon which, in spite of organized money the people yet retain a certain hold, would become the merest partisan autocracy, the President as puissant as a monarch and the people the merest appendages of the politicians."

Mr. Watterson, however, says the time is not only not ripe for the injection of such a plank in the Democratic platform, but practically affirms that such a time never will come; and he closes the editorial with this significant paragraph:

"Mr. Bryan will be the next Democratic nominee for President of the United States. We accept him heartily. We shall work for his election unceasingly."

There are thousands of other friends of Mr. Bryan who do not indorse his advocacy of government ownership. They believe that the railroads can be regulated and controlled without resorting to such a drastic measure as government ownership; and the discussion of that question now is purely academic. Mr. Bryan himself will realize this before the assembling of the next national Democratic convention. And in no event will the party consent to the incorporation of that feature in the platform.

In his New York speech Mr. Bryan was wise enough and candid enough to admit that he was speaking for himself personally, and not for his party, in advocating government ownership.

A DISCORDANT NOTE.

Editor Star:—

I hardly think you were fair to the Simplified Spelling Board and to President Roosevelt in your editorial in last Sunday's Star. It seems to me you could hardly have examined the list of 300 words, published in the same issue, when you wrote your editorial. As a matter of fact, we in America have already adopted over half of the changes recommended; such, for instance, as color, catalog, honor, humor, wagon, etc., and this is an effort to secure uniformity, bringing the English to our way of spelling in many cases. And when there are real changes they are neither radical nor ridiculous. I think the Board (composed of some of the highest authorities in both America and England) have been very conservative. Let's be fair and let's be progressive. It's bound to come. Yours truly,

W. M CUMMING.

We take pleasure in printing the foregoing from Mr. Cumming—why not Cuming now?—but he seems to have failed to see that over "half the changes recommended," which have been in common use in this country for many years were thrown in to give a coating of sugar to the pill—why not pil?—offered as a panacea for our orthographic ailings. When the so-called "Spelling Board" included in its list such words as honor, favor, humor, and scores of other words that had been in practically universal use for "time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," it was simply "throwing a tub to the whale."

But the time is far distant when a majority of the people of this country will adopt this new style of spelling in its entirety. Some of the innovations are abominable. "Kist" for "kissed" is all too short to properly define an osculatory performance, and it goes without saying that the women folk will never abandon the old and longer word.

Must we come to this: the maiden blusht; the properly was assest; the drink was mixt; her hands were chapt; the gunner mist; the child was distrest? We prefer the present style.

Slave to Alcohol for Twenty Years—Took Keeley Treatment and Lost All Desire for Whiskey

The Keeley Institute, Greensboro, N. C.:

It has been twelve years, November 17th., since I finished taking the Keeley Treatment at Greensboro, N. C., for the whiskey habit. I was forty-four years old when I took the treatment. I had been a slave to alcohol for twenty years. Since being cured at your Institute I have never tasted liquor nor any medicine that contained alcohol, nor have I ever had any desire to drink. I am sure it saved me from a drunkard's Hell.

The twelve years since I took the treatment have been a blessing to myself and family. It is so good to know that I am a cured man; and to know if I am faithful to the end I will have a home in the Bright Beyond.

TWINKLINGS.

"What's this art preservative I read so much about?" "Knowing how to put up canned goods, I s'pose."

Briggs—I understand that Gander, the financier, is losing his memory. Griggs—Then he is just beginning to enjoy himself.—Life.

Gunner—In surgery they can restore a person's skin by grafting. Guyer—What a difference between surgery and politcs. Gunner—What is the difference? Guyer—Why, in politics they skin people by grafting.—Chicago Daily News.

"This secret rebate evil is getting to be a serious abuse," declared Senator Klutch. "That's what!" chimed in Senator Graball. "Why, the corporation I represent has actually had the gall to try to work me for one."—Pittsburg Post.

The Maid—What's your opinion of the type of girl who never wants to get married? The Bachelor—I'm not qualified to express an opinion on the subject. The Maid—Why, are you prejudiced?—The Bachelor—No, but I've never seen such a type.—Cleveland Leader.

The Florentine Epicure.

Your typical Florentine is epicurean to the toe tips. His enthusiasms and yearnings are quite other than those of the northerner. Give him 2 francs a day for life, and he will toil no more. He may be a marquis and seventh or eighth in direct descent, but he will be content to forego the assertion of his rank so he may thenceforward enjoy the priceless boon of leisure and independence. His leisure he will dissipate at the cafe with perhaps two three-halfpenny sweet fluids per diem, and you may study the effect of his independence in his courtly manners even though his hat be worn at the brim and his coat back be deplorably shiny. He is a pellucid brook, shallow as you please, yet engaging for his pellucidity. As he sits on the red velvet cushions and looks forth at the carriages and gowns of fashion in the Via Tornabuoni he shows no trace of envy on his open countenance. What, in effect, have these rich ones more than he save the ennui of modishness and the indigestion of high feeding? The monuments and blue skies of Florence, not to mention the glorious or stirring memories of its history, are rather more his than theirs.—Cornhill Magazine.

Kentucky's Names.

Kentucky is known as the Corn Cracker State from a game bird enjoying the same name which was formerly found in great abundance in most parts of the state. It is also called the Blue Grass State, from the belt of land running through the center, in which this variety of grass grows to great perfection. In the early days of our history it was known as the Dark and Bloody Ground, being so termed by the Indians. It was then a debatable land between the Indians living north of the Ohio and those living in the mountains of Tennessee and Georgia, a sort of battleground for these tribes, which fact gave it the name long before it was settled by the whites.

The "Father of Leprosy."

The gecko belongs to a family of thick tongued lizards, which are widely distributed over the tropical and subtropical countries of Europe and Asia, and in all countries where he is known he is thoroughly despised. Because of his repulsive appearance he is called the "father of leprosy." Down to times comparatively modern it was firmly believed that contact either directly or indirectly with the little reptile was sure to communicate leprosy. The investigations of modern zoologists have proved that the little animal is undeserving of his name of "father of leprosy" and that he is indeed a most harmless and useful creature. Since the old belief in the ability of this reptile to communicate leprosy to any human flesh which might come in contact with his warty, sore looking skin was exploded he has retained his objectionable name solely on account of the bad appearance he makes. His skin is one mass of scaly and tuberculous excrescences that cover his body from the tip of his tail to the end of his nose. Every quarter inch section of this repulsive looking body has a general resemblance to the thickened, callous protuberances that appear on the human body in cases of leprosy. On this account and no other the harmless little gecko was given the name of being the progenitor of the worst form of disease.

Ugly Athenian Coins.

It is little surprising that the Athenian coins are less beautiful than some others. They always preserved an affectation of archaism. The Attic drachmas bore the head of Athene and on the reverse an owl often standing on a lyre, the whole in a myrtle wreath. Plutarch in his "Lysander" tells an amusing tale how Glippus had been sent to Sparta with a great sum of money as a bribe and how he unripped the bottoms of the sacks and stole large sums, sewing up the sacks again, not knowing that there was a writing in each sack saying how much coin it held. On coming to Sparta he hid his plunder under the tiles of his house, showing the Ephors the unbroken seals on the mouths of the sacks. When the Ephors opened these they were in great perplexity, but Glippus' servant betrayed him, saying "that under the tiles roosted the owls." The consternation was great. Glippus fled, and the stern Spartans declared that for the future they would use iron coinage made redhot and quenched in vinegar to make it hard and unpliable. In the laws of Solon, 600 B. C., the punishment of death is recorded against forging the coinage.

An African Sea Serpent Story.

Here is a sea serpent story from one of the great fresh water lakes of central Africa. The Globe Trotter of Nairobi, British East Africa, tells it: "According to natives on the shore and islands of Lake Victoria the real simon pure water python is a reality. Officers on board the Sibyl and the Winifred have time and again been unable to account for the unrest shown at times in the most tranquil waters. Sir Clement Hill in crossing the lake some years ago in a launch with one Macgregor, the engineer, saw this monster and described it as having a head resembling the hippopotamus, only three times broader, but much more flat and wedge shaped. The opinion of the natives regarding its length, etc., differs very much, but all agree that the reptile is amphibious and declare they have seen forty feet or more lying dormant on the bank, while the supposed tail, sixty or seventy feet from shore, created a commotion in the water resembling the wash of an ocean steamer."

How They Got Up a Row.

At one of the English country inns Hook and Mathews once got up a mock quarrel before a large company. The wit and the comedian each appealed most earnestly to the sympathy of the company, who, with the true British predilection for anything in the shape of a row, eagerly espoused the side of one or other of the champions. The contest proceeded, and Hook's cool invectives, we are told, grew more and more cutting and the gesticulations of Mathews more wild and extravagant. Blows followed, and the partisans, full of gin and valor, soon followed the example of their principals. A general melee succeeded. Candles were knocked out, tables and chairs overthrown, the glasses "sparkled on the boards," and in the midst of the confusion, just in time to avoid the arrival of the police and the impressive denouement, the promoters of the riot, unobserved, effected their escape, leaving their excitable adherents to compute at leisure the amount of damage done to their persons and property and to explain, if possible, to a magistrate in the morning the cause and object of the combat. —London Spectator.

Norway's Seaweed.

"All along the coast of Norway seaweed is gathered and burned," writes the Christiania correspondent of the London News. "This seaweed grows in veritable forests and is not of the common grass variety. There are actual trees of it, five or six feet high, with stems like ropes and leaves tough as leather. They begin to sprout early in the year and cover the ocean bed with a dense, impenetrable brush. As a source of income the seaweed industry now surpasses the fisheries, and it is more valuable than agriculture even in one of the leading farming districts of Norway. Owners of land abutting on the seashore are reaping a great harvest. After the weeds have been burned the ashes are exported to England, where valuable chemical substances are extracted from them. The most important of these products is iodine."

—Kinston Free Press: The Atlantic Coast Line Railway Company is the largest taxpayer in Lenoir county, paying over $1.700 besidee its county. The American Tobacco Co. comes next with about $1,200, and the A. & N. C. third with a State and county tax of about $850.

—The Chronicle says that Marcus J. Smith, of Boomer, Wilkes county, who has heretofore borne a good reputation, was arrested a few days ago on the charge of incest, the victim being his daughter, Laura Smith. He gave bond for his appearance at the trial, which to take place Monday.

—Congressman Charles R. Thomas, of New Bern, was in Raleogh Tuesday and with him was his son Frank whom he is taking to Red Springs to enter the North Carolina Military Academy. Mr. Thomas says he will begin his campaign at Burgaw, Pender county, September twelfth, at the noon recess of the court.

—As postoffices Lul and Milbrook, in Wake county, are out of commission Postmaster C. W. Horton, of Lul, came to Raleigh to surrender to Postmaster Briggs the property of the postoffice. An order has also gone out for the discontinuance of the postoffice at Milbrook. Rural delivery routes are supposed to have caused the closing of these offices.

At the meeting of the Republican State committee at Greensboro Saturday Fred A. Hull of Asheville, resigned as secretary and Col. W. S. Pearson, of Monganton, was elected his cuccesor. The committee met to discuss plans of campaign and (more important still) to pass on recommendations for Federal officers. Thos. P. Newman was recommended for postmaster at Madison and this was the only recommendatoon made public.

—In Rowan Superior Court last week William Henderson, colored, who killed John Cook, also colored, was convicted of murder on the second degree and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. John Brooks, who killed Ed Hampton by the careless handling of a gun, submitted to a charge of manslaughter and was sentenced to 18 months on the roads. Tom Brown, white, convicted of burglary was sentenced to ten years in penitentiary.

—Greensboro Record, Sept. 4: Mr. George T. Penny, of the firm of Penny Bros. & Co. of this city was stabbed in the breast near the heart by a negro yesterday afternoon while standing on the platform of the depot in Winston-Salem. The wound was not serious and Mr. Penny arrived home on the noon train today. He attended the circus in Winston-Salem yesterday and was waiting for his train to leave for Greensboro when he and the negro had a quarrel.

—A special to Charlootte News from Lexington Sept 4.th, says Charles Wroght Bell is the name of a negro who was before the mayor yesterday on a charge of cruelty to animals, the details of the crime being rather unusual in character as well as somewhat revolting. In trying to induce a balky horse to move, he tied a rope to the animal's tongue and proceeded to pull. The horse did not budge but part of his tongue did, for the brutal negro pulled off half of the member. Strange it hasn't yet killed the animal. The negro, however, was not punished further than paying a heavy fine netting the treasury to the amount of $35.

—Kinston Free Press: A horrible accident took place at Mr. J. D. Marshburn's on Half Moon, this county, last Sunday. Mr. A. A. Marshburn had some whiskey in a bottle under the head of his bed. Mr. J. D. Marshburn's little son, Sydney, found the bottle and it was taken from him by his older brother, Wallace and it was soon discovered that the little fellow had drunk about a half pint. Mr. Marshburn sent for the doctor, but death came in a few minutes after the doctor entered the house. Mr. A. A. Marshburn, the grandfather of the boy, os in a critical condition over the accident resulting from the whiskey

—Two new corporations were chartered by the Secretary of state Tuesday as follows: Guilford Furniture Company, of Greensboro, incorporators, N. J. McDuffie and A. E. Fordham of Greensboro, and C. H and H. A. Roy, of Kinston. The paid in capital of the company, which will do a general furniture and house furnishing business, is $6,000 ;the authorized capital is $40.000. The Contonental Blow Pipe Company, of Lexington, incorporators, W. H. Walker, John D. Crowell, J R. McCrary, all of Lexington. The authorized capital stock is $50.000, and the company commences business with $2,500, paid in. The purposes of incorporation are stated to be to manufacture dust collectors, furnace feeders and exhaust fans and to establish a complete blow-pipe system.

—The Greensboro Record tells this story without giving names: In Greensboro a stalwart man and a small man live side by side. Wednesday a policeman saw the big man, his sleeves rolled up, about to light on the small man. The small man appealed to the officer and the latter restrained the belligerent. The big man declared that the small man had insuled his wife and he was greatly enraged when he was prevented from administering the chastisement he thought he deserved. The small man explained that he had simply asked the woman and how much she weighed, at the same time attempting to lift her. Whereupon the woman objected and made an outcry. The small man was of course astonished that so mhch fuss should be made over a small matter.

—North Wilkesboro Hustler: We learn of an accident that occurred in the negro settlement southeast of this place, across the river, not long ago. A negro was beatong his wife in front of the cabin, which was on the public road. The woman was down on the ground and the man was sitting upon and choking her by clutching her throat with one hand when a white man came along the road in a buggy Seeing what was going on, he jumped out of his buggy and ran up behind the negro and with a 48 struck him over the head such a blow that the pistol fired at the same instant, and the negro rolled over down the hill, hos head skinned and dazed. The woman jumped up and ran round the house hollowing, "Don't shoot him anymore! don't shoot him anymore!" This ended it. All that any of the negroes knew was that "some white man done it."

—News and Observer: The decision in the injunction case of the Seaboard Air Line Railway against Percy J. Olive and other citizens of Apex, is to be rendered later by Judge Webb at Lillington where he is holding court this week. The suit of the Seaboard was to restrain the citizens of Apex against whom it was brought from interfering with the work of the road in building sidetracks, warehouses and platforms on the right-of-way it claims, such work being done in the carrying out of the order of the Corporation Commission that the Seaboard and the Durham and Southern construct a union station at Apex. The citizens hold that their property is interfered and trespassed upon and oppose the work, hence the suit. Judge T. B. Womack, of Raleigh, and his partner, Mr. W. H. Pace, appeared for the petitioning railroad. Col. T. M. Argo, of Raleigh, for Mr. Olive and his brothers, and R. N. Simms, of Raleigh, and R. B. White, of Franklinton, for Mr. White, one of the defendants.

A number of convicts were being carried in a wagon to their place of work and on the trip Clark removed the shackles somehow from his feet while the wagon was moving and rattling and when the wagon stopped by a thicket of bushes and the convicts were getting out of the wagon to go to work, Clark jumped and ran. His attempt to escape was under the very muzzle of the guns, and as he darted into the woods shots were fired at hom by two of the guards. There was much excitement among the other convicts, but none attempted to make a break. A force of guards immediately took up the pursuit, but Clark had the lead and in his third break for liberty he swam across Smith Creek and crossed the swamp beyond this. Finally, after a long pursuit Clark was again captured and is with the convict force again. Clark has often made the remark that he would escape at the first opportunity, and three times he has made the attempt twice by stealth and this time in the open. He is a desperate man and needs the closest watching. It is possible that his term of imprisonment will be extendeded because of these attempts to escape.

Gerald's Wife

By.... IZOLA FORRESTER

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

Broderick swung off the 4:35 express, walked quickly up the steps leading from the railroad platform and took his first look at Pineville. Those who lived in Pineville proper were content to call it Pineville. Gerald had written that they did not live in Pineville proper, but in Pineville-by-the-Sea, otherwise Pineville improper.

All that Broderick saw were pines, plenty of them, a flat white ribbon of roadway and a bit of a postoffice, roughly shingled, in the midst of the nearest clump of pines. He stepped into the postoffice as the central spot of civilization. Some one was stamping letters behind the glass inclosure, a girl with smooth dark hair. Beatrice had smooth dark hair.

He watched the girl stamping letters with interest and wondered why some one did not tell her to wear her smooth dark hair in two soft braids around her head, crown fashion, as Beatrice did.

"Where do the Vaughans live, please?" he asked finally, when the stamping ceased.

"The Vaughans? Oh, Mr. Gerald Vaughan and his wife? It's a brown house down near the shore, with a wide veranda and a funny roof. About a mile straight down the road."

A wide veranda and a funny roof. That sounded like Gerald. He wondered how Gerald's wife liked it. Beatrice was artistic, but not artistically eccentric. She had a horror of things odd, bizarre, so called bohemian, and yet she had married Gerald. And Gerald's brother knew that Gerald was utterly odd, bizarre and bohemian, so called.

He walked on down the flat white ribboned roadway and wondered whether he would find her like the girls Gerald had always admired. A lithesome, limp, blessed damozel type, with close silky gowns and loose floppy hair. Last summer she had not been that type. He thought of the trim girl figure holding the rudder of the Water Lily that last day. She had been more than the sort of a girl to fall in love with. She had been a good fellow, a stanch friend. And as he watched her he had stopped rowing, and they had drifted slowly in the sunset glow that flooded the lake while he told her.

There had been no actual engagement. He had nothing to reproach her with. He had not been in a position to ask her to be his wife then, but he had thought a girl like Beatrice had meant more by a kiss, a hand clasp, a few vague words of understanding, than other girls. He had thought she might wait until next summer. And now, in April, he had returned to New York to learn that Gerald was in disgrace, had married on nothing, eloped to Pineville-by-the-Sea, N. C., and his wife was Beatrice Stafford.

Gerald's mother had said they were penniless. Gerald's father had remarked that he didn't give a rap. They could exist upon love and art.

More or less for Beatrice's sake and a little for Gerald's, Gerald's brother had taken it upon himself to visit the bridal couple and help Gerald. Smothering his own love, he had made up his mind that as long as Beatrice had married a Vaughan she should not suffer from it.

There was no bell at the door of the little brown house with the funny roof. It was merely a bungalow in weathered shingles, and he pounded on the door lustily until it opened and Beatrice stood before him.

She was not the blessed damozel type yet. Her smooth dark hair was wound about her head in just the same crown fashion, and she wore a short dark blue linen skirt and a white-shirt waist. The sleeves were rolled to her elbows, and from her finger tips to elbow dimples there was flour sprinkled.

He had not expected to see her face to face so soon or alone. Neither had he expected her to act as she did. The color rose in her cheeks, tipping even her ears with pink. It was an old habit. He remembered it.

"I thought you were in London," she said.

"You don't give a fellow a very decent welcome after he's traveled from London to this wilderness to say congratulations."

He stepped into the hall after her. She hesitated and laughed, looking at her floured hands.

"I can't shake hands with you, and—and the biscuits are in the oven. I shall have to watch them. Do you mind coming out to the kitchen?"

He didn't mind. There appeared to be only three rooms—the studio-sitting room, the dining room and the kitchen. Collapsible ready-in-a-minute studio divans were in the sitting room and dining room in lieu of bedrooms. It was all charmingly, most uncomfortably odd, bizarre and bohemian.

"Where's Gerald?" he asked when he had found a chair in the kitchen.

Beatrice knelt beside the stove to look at the biscuit. He could not see her face.

"He went to the postoffice for the last mail. You must have missed him."

"Well, what ever made him come to this lost corner?"

"Oh, because it was the chance of something definite, you know! Don't you know?" she added quickly, seeing the puzzled look on his face. "Well, Gerald's chum, Netherby Ames, broke all to pieces last fall from overwork and so on, and he was ordered down here. And he couldn't afford to come and stay indefinitely, so he pulled a few wires, and things happened. He was made postmaster here at Pineville. And he got lonesome and healthy and workful again a month ago, so Gerald's in his place, and he's in New York. Don't you see? It was really very definite and businesslike and right under the circumstances."

"Oh, certainly, under the circumstances," agreed Broderick. "So old Gerry's postmaster instead of artist."

"Both," she corrected. "He has lots of time to study, and it's good for him—the responsibility, I mean. You wouldn't know him."

"I suppose not," assented Broderick uneasily. He tried to reconcile his little circle of the universe, to make the chaotic jumble fall into place and harmonize. Gerald, Gerald the helpless, erratic, fantastic, irrational, joyous hearted, penniless artist, a person of matrimonial responsibility, a postmaster. But then he remembered the young smooth haired person stamping letters. Of course Gerald had found his usual way out of the difficulty. He had hired some Pineville lass to do the heavy work, and he drew the salary. It was like Gerald. But there was Beatrice, Beatrice making biscuit. He looked at her with troubled eyes, seeing endless vistas of Beatrices making biscuit throughout the years.

"Don't you miss New York?"

"Oh, so much!" she said. "I'll never be happy until I get back."

"Have you given up your own work?"

"Only for the time being. I shall take it up again, of course. I shall have to."

Broderick's hands tightened in a sudden grip. So she was to work again, turn out her endless succession of little wash illustrations for second rate monthly magazines. Gerald would not mind, would not see the point. He would think he was being broadminded and bohemian to let his wife carry on her own art irrespective of him. But Beatrice saw the point.

He rose from his chair suddenly, his face white with the anger and love he had smothered. Before he could stop himself the words came leaping to his lips:

"Why did you do it?"

"Do what?"

She stood beside the little safe kitchen table, her face raised to his, her eyes bright with startled wonderment at his tone.

"Why did you marry Gerald?"

"Marry Gerald! I?" Some one was coming along the white roadway. From the kitchen window two figures could be seen, and she pointed to them. "There is Gerald, and that is his wife, my sister Barbara. I am merely attendant star to the honeymoon. They brought me along to—well, to make the biscuit."

A minute later and Broderick met the bridal couple on the wide veranda under the funny roof. The bride was the girl with the smooth dark hair who had been stamping letters, and she laughed at him.

"I knew who you were, but I wanted Gerald all to myself, and I knew Beatrice would take care of you."

"She did," answered Broderick happily, and as the rest went into the house he paused to brush off traces of flour from his coat collar. But Beatrice burned the biscuit.

Quite Apparent.

THE HOME-COMING OF HON. W. J. BRYAN

Warmly Welcomed By An Assemblage in Which There Was No Partisan Division

CITY GAILY DECORATED

Lincoln Never Held a Larger Crowd—Escorted to His Home By a Procession Headed By Six Bands.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Lincoln, Neb., September 5.—W. J. Bryan tonight returned to his home and the "Home Folks" welcomed him with evesy evidence of approval and satisfaction. It was a neighborly welcome. Planned as such and carried out as planned.

Lincoln has more Republicans than Democrats but tonoght there was no line of partisian divison, and the welcome extended to both Mr. Bryan and Mrs. Bryan was sincere and joyful.

It is doubtful whether Lincoln ever held a larger crowd that that which came to the city today. It was a half holiday in the city, and every train from over the state arrived loaded down, bringing not only Nebraskan people, but many from nearby states.

The city was handsomely decorated. The non-partisan nature of the reception was emphasized in every way possible.

The Bryan train arrived shortly after 5 o'cloc' There was a roar of welcome as the train rolled in and Mr. Bryan appeared on the platform. In the party, aside from Mr. and Mrs. Brayn appeared their daughter, Grace, was the Lincoln delegation which left here ten days ago to meet him at New LYork and which Mr. Bryan accompanied on its nomeward trip, together with a few of the Nebraska democratic mayors who also went to New York

Showing no sign of fatigue, but bowing right and left and smiling happily with an occasional word to an old acquaintance, Mr. Bryan walked to a carriage. Seated with him in the trap were Goy. Mickey, Mayor Brown and John E. Miller, president of the Lincoln Commercial club. A second carroage had Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. M. D. Welch, Mrs. J. E. Miller and Mayor Dahlman of Omaha. Then in turn followed carriages containing members of the reception committee and newspaper men who accompanied Mr. Bryan from the east. No attempt was made at a parade, although there was a pretentious mounted escort headed by Captain James Cosgrave policemen on horse back fraternal organizations and individual marcherd the whole preceeded by six bands Among those present were a number of officers and men who were members of Bryan's regiment in Spanish war, and they cheered their colonel heartily. The party traversed three of the principal business streets, lined with cheering crowds, and then proceeded to the home of Charles W. Bryan, where Mr. Bryan had dinner and rested for a time prior to going to the state capitol grounds for the speaking exercises and reception.

Two hours before the time for the exercises at the capitol grounds 35,00 persons struggled for points of vantage around the speaker's stand Mr. Bryan was escorted to the stand by Governor Mickey from his private office in the state house. In a broef speech of welcome Mayor Brown said:

"Before introducing Governor Mickey who will extend the greetings of the state, Mr, Bryan, I, as mayor welcome you home; not as a statesman, not as a democrat, but as the dearest to us all our beloved neighbor."

Governor Mickey spoke of the awakenong of the public conscience to civic righteousness and on this connection spoke of "bogus reformers."

As Governor Mickey concluded and Mr. Bryan arose, there was renewed cheering and handclapping. Mr. Bryan began by saying that in hs travel he had learned that the Arabic language contained 600 words meaning camel and that since returning to the United States he had wisher that the American language contained as many words meaning "I thank you." He declared the happiest part of the long journey was the home coming and then went into a general description of his travels.

Following Mr. Bryan's speech a reception took place on the capitol. There was a brilliant display of fireworks n the state house grounds.

FOR ILLICIT DISTILLING.

Eight Wilkes County Men Plead Guilty in United States Court.

Greensboro, N. C. September 5.—Eight Wilkes county mountaineers indicted for illicit dstiling, pleaded guilty in United States district court today. The court will impose sentences later. The defendants who pleaded guilty are James Combs, James Ellis, James Eler, Poley Fraley, Coe Eller, W. S. Smith, Garbillo Foster and Audry Foster.

The taking of evidence in the case of United States vs. R. H. Hardin, a former deputy collector of internal revenue, charged with making false returns of stills destroyed consumed the time of the court today. Fifteen witnesses were examined.

The Ark Born Man.

Hundreds of the ancient gleaners of miscellaneous curios, legends, myths and traditions give us to understand that Cush was born on the ark. Others claim that there was a child born on the sacred vessel, but that it was sacrificed to one of the wild beasts. Noah declaring that no person should leave the ark who had not gone on board in the regulation manner. The weight of the evidence as it is given by the Talmudic writers is to the effect that Cush is the person referred to by the old time mystery gleaners when they speak of the "ark born" man. The sacred books as well as the scores of Biblical encyclopedias, handbooks of ancient history, etc., are silent on the subject. In the "Saxon Chronicles" the following occurs: "Bedwig was the son of Shem, who was the son of Noah, and he (Bedwig) was born on the ark." Herbert's note in "Nimrod," volume 2, page 37, says, "Kybele is the ark, and as Cush was begotten in the ark his posterity were in a peculiar sense descended from that ship." Although Herbert makes no direct reference to the fact of Cush being actually born in the ark, he speaks of him in several places as "Cush, the ark born." The Talmudic writers discredit the Bedwig story, but declare that Cush was born on the day that "God's covenant" (the rainbow) first appeared.

The Mystery of the Heavens.

Look through a telescope at some tiny star invisible to the naked eye. The light from that star perhaps left its surface before the time of William the Conqueror. It may be—it is not quite impossible—that the tiny star has since those days actually left off shining, but still we see it in our sky because the rays which started while it yet shone are arriving moment by moment, telling us the story of what the star was like hundreds of years ago, before it parted with its brightness. Perhaps, again, we are examining through a large telescope a faint and faroff nebula—a mass of whirling gases the light of which has taken, say, 10,000 years to get there. We see what the nebula was like in prehistoric ages. It may since then have lessened in size and changed in shape. It may now wear a very different aspect, and men looking from earth 10,000 years hence will be able to see what that nebula was like in our days. All these things help us to understand what the immensity of the stellar system is, and, yet more, to imagine dimly what the measurement and extent of all creation must be if any such star systems float side by side throughout the vast domains of space.—Chambers' Journal.

The Art of Not Hearing.

The art of not hearing should be learned by all. There are so many things which it is painful to hear, very many of which if heard will disturb the temper, corrupt simplicity and modesty, detract from contentment and happiness. If a man falls into a violent passion and calls all manner of names at the first words we should shut our ears and hear no more. If in a quiet voyage of life we find ourselves caught in one of those domestic whirlwinds of scolding we should shut our ears as a sailor would furl his sail and, making all tight, scud before the gale. If a hot, restless man begins to inflame our feelings we should consider what mischief the fiery sparks may do in our magazine below, where our temper is kept, and instantly close the door. If all the petty things said of a man by heedless and ill natured idlers were brought home to him he would become a mere walking pincushion stuck full of sharp remarks. If we would be happy when among good men we should open our ears, when among bad men shut them. It is not worth while to hear what our neighbors say about our children, what our rivals say about our business, our dress or our affairs.

They Tipped Him.

Tourist (visiting an ancient castle)—Are there any legends connected with this old castle? Guide—Oh, yes. It is said that in ancient times a stranger once visited this castle and gave no tip to the guide. Thereupon the latter threw the visitor over into the moat. But don't be frightened. Of course it's only an idle legend.

The Hidden State.

Find five states, such that the first letter of the first state, the second letter of the second state, the third letter of the third state, the fourth letter of the fourth state and the fifth letter of the fifth state shall spell the name of a coast state. The first state has the nineteenth parallel of latitude passing through a section of it. The second has the seventy-seventh, the third the one hundred and tenth, the fourth the eightieth and the fifth the ninety-fifth. What are the five states, and what is the hidden state?

The Word "Bribery."

"Bribery" is a word with a curious history. In the old Geneva Bible it is said of the scribes and pharisees that they "make clean the outer side of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of bribery." The authorized version has "extortion," and there is no doubt that by "bribery" the Geneva Bible meant robbery. "Bribery" probably meant originally a morsel, a broken off piece, but it occurs first in old French, signifying a piece of bread given to a beggar; hence the Italian "birba," vagrancy, and the old French "bribeur," a beggar or greedy devourer. "Bribe" developed in two directions, in the senses of robbery and of a present. When Falstaff speaks of "a bribed buck" he means not one that had been corrupted, but one that had been stolen.

Planets With Three Suns.

The people inhabiting the planets in the solar system of Gamma have no need of electricity, gas, oil or other kind of artificial light. In those favored worlds they have continuous daylight and probably have no idea of a land like ours which is alternately bathed in sunlight and plunged into darkness. The Gammanean planets are so situated that as soon as one of their three suns begins to decline another appears in sight. Each of these three suns is of a different color—red, yellow and blue.

All Democrats Looking to Him to Lead to Victory in 1908

The Democrats of all sections of the United States are turning to Bryan to lead the Democratic victory in 1908. The News and Observer in State and National politics has always stood as the advocate of the same principles which have made Bryan the national leader.

Every Democrat in North Carolina ought to read the true Democratic doctrine every day until the November election. The News and Observer preaches that doctrine, and it prints all the news. The best evidence that it is a fine newspaper is that in eleven years its circulation has grown from 2,500 to over 11,000. Send one dollar and get it daily until the November election. Address

A NEW PROBLEM FOR ROOSEVELT

The Unionizing of Postal Clerks is Likely to Prove a Political Embarrassment to Roosevelt.

Washington, Sept. 3.—A new trouble has arisen to worry the Roosevelt administration. In a nut shell, it is an effort on the part of the American Federation of Lab r to unionize the postal clerks of the country. A beginning has been made in Chicago and it is expected that the effort will be extended, as rapidly as may be practicable to other large cities of the country

The movement is likely to be embarrassing, in a political sense, to the administration, as it would be, inevitably, to any administration of whatever political party. Permission to organize the postal clerks of the country into unions would not be in accordance with the previous policy of the administration, although there is no hard and fast rule against such an organization.

If the President or his Postmaster General, Mr. Cortelyou, should antagonize openly the unionizing of the postal clerks, the administration would be placed in the attitude of opposition to organized labor. In view of the present attitude of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and some other leaders of organized labor the making of such an issue is not courted by the President.

No regulation of the Postoffice Department prohibits the clerks in postoffices from joining such organization as they may care to join, but they are expressly prohibited, as are all other employes of the government, from seeking to have their pay increased through association or organization.

Frank H. Hitchcock, acting Postmaster General, says he knows of no reason why the clerks in any postoffice should not form a union, provided that the rules of the organization do not infringe upon the postal regulations. Such infringement, of course, could not be permitted.

It is significant, however, that President Gompers expects, as is stated by the labor leaders in Chicago, to wield, through the postal clerks' union an influence upon candidates for Congress and upon members of Congress after their election. It is stated, furthermore, that a shorter work day and increased pay are two of the things the new union will endeavor to bring about.

It is quite evident that the brain of President Gompers has been fired with political ambitons. The success of the labor unions in Great Britain has appealed strongly, not only to him, but also to other leaders of organized labor in the United States, and they are hoping in a few years, to emulate their brethren across the water. The organization of a union among postal employes would be a shrewd tactical move in the game of domestic politics, and, if successful, would go far toward forcing a political recognition of organized labor.

What the President may think or what he may do in the matter are yet are unsolved questions. He could put an instant end to the unionizing of postoffice employes if he cared to do so, but whether he will take any such action is, at this time, altogether problematical.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Canthrarides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

MOSQUITOES ARE HARD TO FOOL

"Oils" Are No Protection—He Will Wait to Hear You Snore Before He Proceeds to Business.

(Greensboro Record.)

This is not the sea coast, but mosquitoes are bad just about now. This was to be expected on account of so much rain. Men and women who do not like a canopy or net have tried all kinds of "oils," but the pesky little fellows are smart; they have found that it does not kill and they simply hold their nose and dive for you. A man said he experimented with them and knows how they do it. He had been using citronilla and for some time it did the work, but they have discovered that death does not follow in its wake and they have grown bold so that they simply hold their breath and nose at the same time and swipe you.

A canopy is the best, but even with this great care must be taken. A man who purchased a new and very fine one last week declared that he was unable to keep one or two from getting in it at night, when they can keep one awake with all ease; they are worse than a dozen working where there is no net. He used every means and finally some one asked if his net was kept well down, with the edge on the floor. He said no, but it was below the railing of the bed.

"Then put it down smack to the floor," said the other; "a mosquito has sense and judgment; he tries to get inside and he will keep on until he finds a place if there is one; if the net is above the floor he will monkey around the foot or head of the bed, crawl up from the floor and find his meat sure."

The remedy was used and now the cussin' man gets along all right. They will find the seam or opening on the side if it is left open the least bit, and slip in. A mosquito has reasoning powers; he is not going to swoop down on you if he thinks you are awake; he is afraid; he waits until he hears you snore, then proceeds to do business. Here is where the snoring man gets the worst of it. One who does not snore can manage to fool the little rascals some times.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Sept. 5.—The cotton market was moderately active again to-day with fluctuations irregular. After an early break the undertone was fairly steady, however, and the close was steady at net decline of 6@7 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 250,000 bales.

The opening was easy at a decline of 11 to 14 points in response to very disappointing cables, liquidation by some of yesterday's buyers and a renewal of bear pressure. But some of the larger shorts appeared to be covering at the decline and with a tropical storm predicted to reach the South Atlantic coast by Thursday evening, offerings were not very heavy so far as fresh selling for short account was concerned. There was some pressure from Wall street sources, a little Southern selling and some selling by spots supposed to be against purchases in the South but the market gradually rallied and last prices were at practically the best point of the session. The weather map showed further rains over the belt but precipitation was light and there were fewer private crop complaints. The government report giving the condition of cotton as of August 25, will be issued at 1 o'clock on next Monday and the first report of the census bureau giving the amount of cotton ginned prior to September 1, will be issued at 2 o'clock on the same day.

Receipts cotton at the ports today 11,329 bales against 11,306 last week and 21,170 last year. For the week 80,000 bales against 74,775 last week and 157,908 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 460 bales against 2,259 last year and at Houston 6,275 bales against 10,409 last year.

Testing Prudence

.....By M. J. PHILLIPS

Copyright, 1906, by Beatrix Reade

Berkeley Marshall leaned luxuriously back in the shady chair, hoisted his feet to the bed and blew a ring of smoke ceilingward from his cigar. "To recapitulate," he began, directing his remarks to the calendar which hung on the wall and from which stared back at him the face of a supposedly beautiful young woman with a fixed and sugary smile, "your left ear is confoundedly out of drawing. I beg your pardon, I'm not an artist. I'm a civil engineer—or will be next June. And that isn't what I started out to remark.

"To recapitulate, I have peddled maps over three states, and the net profits of these adventures are $531.62. I have a steady job during the college year waiting on table at three per and found. Furthermore, I have a dress suit and clothes and ties and things. Further yet, I have an invitation from my cousin, Torrence Marshall, to spend a week with him at Sylvan Cove, the swellest resort on this little old ocean. It is now Saturday night, Sept. 15, and college opens up the 25th.

"The question seems to be shall I go on peddling maps and accumulating more filthy lucre, which I may possibly need; shall I go home, which is 300 miles away; to college, which is 450, or to Sylvan Cove, which is under a hundred and where pretty young women, it is presumed, abound?"

In due parliamentary form the Sylvan Cove question was put and carried unanimously, whereupon the boy—he was little more—bowed gravely to the calendar lady and thanked her for her kindness in voting with him. Then he ran down the stairs of the country hotel to consult the time table, for he was in a hurry to be off.

Marshall found Sylvan Cove in the elaborate simplicity stage of summer resort development. Everything was costly, but very plain, for the Cove was inhabited each season mainly by wealthy people who had become accustomed to their money.

On the first day of his stay Marshall naively confided to his cousin that he believed Prudence Fairchild to be the prettiest girl at the Cove, whereupon Torrence grinned and replied, "Stung, are you?" On the second day he learned that she could swim like a seal and golf like a Scot. That evening, by virtue of four dances which she generously gave him at the pavilion party, his stock of knowledge was augmented by the fact that Miss Prudence danced like a fairy.

His approval of the tanned, red lipped and wholesome young woman deepened during a long sail the next morning, when he discovered that her taste in books and tennis rackets was identical with his own. When Torrence informed him later, however, that her father, Rufus Fairchild, was credited with more millions than there were letters to his name the young man experienced a novel and entirely unpleasant sinking of the heart.

His own financial situation did not trouble Marshall—in fact, he found humor in his poverty. Marshall's father had been rich until an industrial flurry had left him broken and penniless. Berkeley himself, a natural engineer and in love with the profession he had chosen, felt the prescient stir of genius within him, vague but real. His teachers predicted great things of him, and with the knowledge of his own powers and his burning desire to achieve, fame and wealth were merely around the next corner.

Yet the fact of Miss Fairchild's wealth depressed him. "I've almost monopolized her since I've been here," he told himself, "and she'll think it's the blooming money. I suppose half this bunch that's hanging around her would marry a Digger Indian for the old man's pile. I wish she were poor!" The latter aggrieved and sincere remark revealed to Marshall that he was dangerously near being in love.

A certain sensitive pride, for he had a morbid fear that his attitude might be misconstrued, kept Marshall out of the girl's presence most of the time thereafter. Maybe she understood, for the possession of much money often brings a woman bitter wisdom; maybe it was a feminine desire to repay him for his aloofness; at any rate, Miss Fairchild contrived to give Marshall a glance at parting, as he held her cool little hand, that thrilled his every pulse. It was like the song of a nightingale or the scent of June roses. And the memory moved him again and again that winter as he built theoretical bridges in the class room or delivered vegetable soup in the hotel dining room.

Now, a look such as that from a girl who is not a flirt dwells in her memory too. Miss Fairchild's cheeks were hot sometimes when she thought of it and of the answering glance of bewildered joy that flashed from Marshall's blue eyes. "He might take advantage of it," she said to herself in brief, delicious panic when the invitation of a chum, Nell Burrows, to come for the January hop of the seniors at Marshall's college reached her. But she went nevertheless.

The assurance with which he confiscated five of the dances on her card at the ball showed that Marshall remembered. They sat out two, which was delightful, but dangerous. There was little said, and the silence between them was intimate and significant.

Removed from the glamour of the lights and the music, from the half shielded promise of her eyes and the intoxication of her beauty, Marshall was not satisfied. "If she were only poor!" he repeated to himself. "How can she know that it's she I want and not the money? Suppose that she thinks I'm a fortune hunter? And if the money makes any difference with her, then she doesn't care for me. I wish I knew. If you only could give me a sign, sweetheart, that you had faith in my love"—

It was lunchtime, and Marshall was at his accustomed table in the hotel. His musings were broken by the opening of the door. Miss Fairchild and Miss Burrows came in. They were accompanied by Bronson and Carrick, wealthy frat men of his own class.

Out of the corner of his eye Marshall saw Miss Fairchild start a trifle when she recognized him. When the party had been seated two tables away by young Condon, another student waiter, the girl's back was toward him. He had given her no opportunity for a greeting.

For it had flashed over the young man that the sign, either of favor or of contempt for his poverty and his menial occupation, must be given. The girl would show whether her nature were gold or dross. If she were ashamed of him, if she left the room without a word, he resolved to tear the love he felt from his heart and trample it under foot.

Marshall never knew what he did before the crucial time came, the moment of the party's rising from the table after lunch, but no detail of what followed escaped him. He saw the amused lift of Bronson's eyebrows, the scowl on Carrick's forehead and Miss Burrows' undisguised interest as Prudence Fairchild, eyes softly shining, came back to where he stood.

"If the mountain will not go to Mohammed," she said smilingly, "then of course Mohammed must come to the mountain. And I mean to quarrel with you some time for turning your back when I came in. But I shan't scold now; I'm leaving for home tomorrow, and I wondered if I'll see you again."

"I will call tonight to say goodby," he replied eagerly, "and I have something important to say, if I may see you alone. I think I've been waiting all my life to say it."

Her glance thrilled him as it had that September day at the seashore.

"You may see me alone," she whispered.

Disraeli's Retirement.

In 1876 Mr. Disraeli was raised by the queen to the peerage under the title of Lord Beaconsfield, and he left the house of commons before the news of his elevation to the house of lords had been made public. His withdrawal from the stage where he had played so long the leading part in a manner obviously devised to avoid any sort of ovation was in accordance with the dignity which characterized the remaining years of his life after the defeat of the Conservatives, when the general election of 1880, in consequence of the Midlothian campaign, had terminated his public career. No applicant for his opinions on any subject ever received a postal card from Lord Beaconsfield. No speech was ever made by him at railway stations. He died in 1881 as he had lived—alone, a stranger amid a strange people. After his death his memory became to English Conservatives an object of almost sentimental affection; to English Radicals it remained an object of never failing animosity. But to Englishmen of all politics, to Conservatives and Liberals alike, his life continues to be a constant puzzle, an unsolved enigma.

BANK LOOTER TO BE BROUGHT BACK

Moorish Authorities Will Interterpose No Objection to the Removal of Stensland

LEGAL QUESTIONS INVOLVED

Stensland is a Prisoner at The American Legation—The Authorities Are Undecided as How to Bring Him Back.

By Wire to The Morning Star.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The Moorish authorities will interpose no objection to the removal to America of Paul O. Stensland, president of 'the Milwaukee Avenue Bank, of Chicago. A dispatch to this effect has been received at the State Department from Minister Gummere, at Tangier, dated today. The dispatch added that Stensland is a prisoner in the American legation there.

Immediately upon the receipt of the dispatch from Mr. Gummere, the State Department officials telegraphed its substance to Governor Deneen at Springfield, Ill., in answer to the application made by him yesterday for the arrest and return to Chicago of Stensland.

As to the means of returning Stensland to this country, the state and navy officials were in consultation today at which it was indicated that it would not be easy ' find a suitable warship within a reasonable time on whi'h to bring Stensland back.

So the State Department officials are i clined to think that a merchanship after all might serve and their plan is to have some of the regular Mediterranean liners cross over from Gibraltar to Tangier and take Stensland aboard there, not stopping afterward at any European port and thus avoiding any embarrassing issues with foreign officials as to extradition. It is suggested, however, that upon arrival in New York, Stensland, through his attorneys, may apply for a habeas corpus on the claim that his arrest was illegal and it is admitted that the question is a new one, the case being without precedent.

The Treasury Department, at the instance of the bank people, in Chicago, has addressed to the State Departmentan inquiry relative to the possibility of obtaining the $12,000 which Stensland deposited in the French Bank of Morocco. The Chicago bank people wish to know how to proceed to recover their money. The case is almost without precedent, so the State Department officials are not quite clear in their own minds as to how this question should be answered.

The Chicago officials now on their way to Washington probably will be fully posted by the solicitor of the State Department before their departure from Washington for Morocco as to how to proceed in this matter.

FOR THE LYERLY MURDER.

Indictments found Against Three and Trial Set for Friday.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Salisbury N. C., September 5.—Judge Gentle, who has been held without bond on the charge of murder since the tripple lynching here on the night of August 6th. was acquitted on a charge of jail breaking tonight Gentlie made a boast on the night of the lynching that he tied the knot around the neck of the man lynched, but he since then has stoutly denied participating in the lynching. He is still in custody, however, and may be tried for murder. The grand jury today found new true bills for murder in the first degree against Della Dillingham (wife of one of the men lynched, George Erwin and Henry Gillespie, all three of whom were to have been tried at the special term of court in August along with the victims of the mob. The new indictments are designed to meet the question raised as to Governor Glenn's egal right to call the special term of court when he was out of the state. The trial has been set for Friday.

THE NEEDS OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

"What the Party Wants," is Men and Not Measures, Says Mr. Jerome in a Speech to New York Democrats.

By Wire to the Morning Star.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 5.—District Attorney William Travers Jerome, of New York, was the central figure in the conference of up-State Democrats, called to meet here today to consider the condition of the Democratic party in the State of New York. It was declared by the sponsors of the conference, leading among whom was ex-Mayor Thomas W. Osborne, of Auburn, that Mr. Jerome was present merely as a speaker, not as a party to the conference, and that the meeting was not in the interest of his candidacy, or that of any other man for the Democartic nomination for Governor.

Mr. Jerome mentioned no names in his address. He dealt with the general purposes, general condition and possibilites of the Democratic party. He declared it as his understanding that the conference was in the interest of no particular candidacy, least of all, to dictate to or threaten the convention of our party soon to assemble at Buffalo."

He took direct issue with the opinion recently expressed by Governor Folk, of Missouri, and others, though he named no one.

"Real leadership is nowhere in sight," said he, "and what passes for leadership seems to consist of demagogic denunciation of existing conditions and the advancing of vague schemes of socialism and paternalism which are essentially revolutionary in character.

"We are not 'on the threshold of the greatest political awakening this nation has ever known,' marking 'the beginning of a new age,' but we are, I believe about to return to our senses, and to earnestly address ourselves to the solution of the difficult problems confronting us by the methods which the past has shown to be entirely adequate to meet the greatest emergencies.

"Our elections, where national political parties are involved, have become little more than ignoble scrambles for office in which each candidate declares how good he will be if elected to office and vies with his opponent in claiming trust busting and anti-corporation virtues, not forgetting to emphasize how warmly his heart beats for organized labor.

"In the midst o. all this 'the plain people' go about their business.

"Seeing no real issue at present interest in dividing the national parties they stand indifferent fo each, ready and free to choose when an issue arises that interests them."

"The Republican party," he continued, "had always been conservative, opposed to change and innovation, until today, half consciously it voices its character by declaring itself to be the party of the 'stand patter.'

"On the other hand, the Democratic party is the party of the liberal. Only recently has erorts bee made to drag the party from the path of progress to that of revolution.

"The men responsible for the present demoralized condition of the party machinery should be driven out.

"From a great vote getting organization, they have made it simply a delegate getting machine."

"The Democratic party disgraced dna humiliated by years of mismanagement, to give it no harsher name would array themselves behind their party candidates if they are men of character standing on a platform of real Democracy.

"And in that platform, they want no crazy socialism nor revolutionary paternalism. What they want is men and not measures. They have little faith in new laws while there is not honesty and capacity enough in public servants to work the old."

TRYING TO SETTLE IT.

Movement on Foot to Bring About Peace in Cuba.

(By Cable to The Morning Star.)

Havana, September 5.—Peace in the air, and on all sides tonight there is hope that matters will be arranged between the government and the insurgents so as to avoid further bloodshed. However there has advance toward an agreemnt or to a definitive arangement of a basis for negotiation. In the meantime fighting has been practically suspended. Delegates informally chosen by a small group of veterans started today to the camps of Fino Guerra, Colonel Asbert, General Guzman and others of the insurgent leaders with the purpose of learning what will be acceptable to the actual fighting leaders of the revolution.

A similar committee started for Cienfueges to consult under a flag of truce with the insurgents in Santa Clara province. Late this afternoon General Menocal, General Cebreco and other veterans held a conference with Alfredo Zayas, the leader of the liberal party, which however, did not result in reaching any understanding. At the same time the executive committee of the moderate party was holding a conference at which the subject of peace was excitedly discused although no determination was reached.

A CONFERENCE AT SAGAMORE HILL

Congressional Campaign and the Political Situation in New York Freely Discussed

AT LOSS FOR A CANDIDATE

Republicans Looking for a Man Big Enough to Ignore Bossism and Who Could Command the Vote of the Party.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Oyster Bay, September 5.—There was a polotical conference at Sagamore Hill today. President Roosevelt had as his guests Representatives Lucius N. Littauer, Postmaster General Cortleyou, Chairman of the Republican Natoonal Committee and Lyman H. Bass. of Buffalo. It is understood that both the congressional campaign and the situation in New York State were thoroughly canvassed.

When Mr. Littauer returned from Sagamore Holl to take his train for New York after spending several hours with the President, he emphasized again the fact that the President has a most keen interest in the outcome of he congressconal election, and also that while he has determined to take no active part in the state situation he os very desirous that the right thing be done by the party in straightening out its tangle.

While Mr. Littauer admitted that the state sotuation was discussed most seriously, he said he was not at liberty to announce any conclusion reached.

"It is apparent to every observing man in the state, he said, "that the sotuation oday is such as o demand the advent of a man big enough to entirely ignore bossism, a man who could administer the affairs of the state as governor with a master hand and who could command the vote of the Republocan party independent of factional opposition. New York has had ten years of Republican rule.

The State has prospered under that rule, and there is no doubt that a large percentage of young voters of the state are Republicans in theor inclination. What the party needs at this moment is the nominatoon of a man for governor who can unite all the Republican votes of the state. Of course the work in hand is to find that man."
